WITH THE NEW YEAR'S ARRIVAL, VICTORIA GOLD continues to ramp up operations at its Eagle Gold Mine and is proud of its commitment to Yukoners At Work.

One such Yukoner, dozer and grader operator Bob Fuller, started with Victoria at the mine last August. "I love being active and getting to move around site on different equipment," says Bob. "I'm so fortunate to work in a beautiful place with such good people, clean air and clean water."

Fellow Yukoner D'Arcy Arden has been a haul truck operator at the Eagle Gold Mine since March. "I really enjoy working with 'big toys' in my position at the mine with a crew that is truly great to work with," says D'Arcy.

Geologist Briar Gonie is also a Yukoner. She started with Victoria at the mine last May and her role includes geologic mapping and sampling, placer testing and core logging.

"I really appreciate how fulfilling my work is and how every day on the job is different," says Briar. "We are so well cared for at camp and are surrounded by happy, caring people."

Driller and avid outdoorsman Kirk Crossley has been working for

Victoria at the Eagle Gold Mine since May. "Safety and that of my co-workers motivates me in my work each and every day," says Kirk. "Aside from hanging out with my grandchildren when home from site, the people I work with are truly the best."

Rob King has been a hydraulic shovel operator at the mine since July. "I enjoy managing the pit, my work area at site, and am strongly motivated by safety, as is Victoria Gold," says Rob. "I have been a first responder for 30 years and enjoy hunting and fishing when not at work."
